GOMENOL. We have secured a supply of Gomenol, the new antiseptic which has been so thoroughly tested at the Pasteur institute, and is recommended by the best physicians of France. Le Figaro, the great French paper, says:

"Immediately Doctors took hold of Gomenol, and from experiments by Drs. Dujardin-Beaumetz, Huchard, Monin, Forné of the Pasteur Institute and others, they found they had something marvellously antiseptic, and a wonderful microbe destroyer. Gomenol is neither corrosive or poisonous, it does not even irritate, and eliminates easily, possesses a singular affinity for mucous membranes, on which it acts as a tonic. In other words, Gomenol acts on the respiratory passages as quinine acts on fever. It is well worth attention."
